

WEEK OF AUGUST 31, 2026

From Woody: I was reading a fascinating insert in "The USA Today" about George Washington's efforts to treat the native tribes fairly and to avoid their destruction. It was not successful due to the greed of the citizens for land. In the writeup I came across an amazing story about Abigail Adams, wife of John Adams. She was the strong lady who kept the farm going in Massachusetts while he was involved in Congress and then an effort to get French help in the Revolution. She was an amazing lady and, when she and John lived in New York City, when he was Vice President, she was loved by the Native Americans there. Greg Burton tells this story:

The Creeks fell in love with Abigail. They came over and do dances for her. They sing songs to her. They make her an honorary Creek Indian chief. When she comes to watch the debates in the Senate they sing songs to her. It is a reminder of a woman of great import in our history. Isn't it strange we still haven't had a woman President?
